By Mary Ellis

Mary Ellis was just 18 years old when she joined the Air Transport Auxiliary (ATA) in 1941, a civilian organization that ferried aircraft from factories to RAF bases during World War II. Over the next three years, she would fly over 1,000 planes of all types, including the iconic Spitfire.

In her memoir, Spitfire Girl, Ellis tells the story of her extraordinary life in the sky. She describes the challenges and dangers of flying during wartime, the camaraderie of her fellow pilots, and the thrill of flying the Spitfire, one of the most iconic aircraft in history.

Ellis's memoir is not only a fascinating account of her own experiences, but also a valuable historical document. It provides a unique glimpse into the role of women in aviation during World War II, and sheds light on the challenges and prejudices that they faced.

Spitfire Girl is an inspiring and riveting read, perfect for anyone interested in aviation history, World War II, or the stories of extraordinary women.
